Last year it was stated that the Chinese Minister at Washington had threatened that unless the United States repealed the Chinese Exclusion Act now in force the Chineso Government would exclude Americans from China. To avoid this undesirable coutingency the Authorities at Peking may be disposed to pocket their national pride and allow the American missionaries to prosecute their work unmolested. It is inevitable. however, that anti-Chinese legislation in the United States or elsewhere must give rise to a feeling of irritation at Peking as well as among the Chinese people generally. During the recent anti-foreign disturbances it ITALIAN AND AMERICAN MARBLE was more than once stated that the Empress-Dowager was in sympathy with the outbreak, and although it appears unlikely that the sympathy was directly or indirectly expressed, the report that the expulsion of citizens of the United States had previously been under consideration lends some colour to the supposition that the attacks upon foreigners |2492 | might not be regarded with absolute disfavour at Peking.
